Monthly Fact Sheet October 2024

COMMENTARY - October 20241

The Securis Catastrophe Bond Fund (Class A USD) returned +1.28% in October 2024, bringing the year-to-date return to +10.97%. Based on total storm energy, the North Atlantic hurricane season is now 98.4% complete. While August and most of September were abnormally quiet, accumulated cyclone energy (ACE) since Hurricane Helene in late September has been unusually active. This was expected as reducing upper-level atmospheric temperatures promoted atmospheric instability that creates conditions supporting hurricane formation.

Hurricane Milton was a headline-grabbing but ultimately over-sensationalised event for the month. The hurricane reached Category 5 strength twice during its lifespan but ultimately made landfall as a weakening Category 3 storm south of Tampa Bay. The fund delivered a +0.49% return during the period coinciding with Hurricane Milton, illustrating its defensive positioning relative to the Swiss Re Global Cat Bond Total Return Index, which posted a negative performance of -1.08% over the same period. By month-end, the index recovered as it became clear that the headlines were not reflective of actual damage on the ground.

In October, the fund made investments in three new issues and a moderate number of secondary investments. We anticipate increased portfolio turnover as the primary issuance season gains momentum toward the end of the quarter.
